“ My first reaction upon learning of William Lee's passing was a vision of my Lolita's excitement in seeing her precious soulmate once again. They were such a perfect pair.

In spending time with Lolita, I was so privileged as to also experience the quiet strength of the man I attempt to honor today. William Lee was an exceptional man. Not only was he a most avid reader, he was also most capable of implementing many of the ideas that he often read about. In later years he would share with me what he had found of interest on his computer. Whether he sought new ideas regarding his farming or just the news from the work-a-day world, he retained what he read and applied it to his life.

While he was a man of few words, William Lee spoke volumes in the principles of life, evident to all who came in contact with him, and especially those of us who were so blessed as to have spent time with him and Lolita in their home.

How I have missed Lolita and now I will miss William Lee as well. But I am ever so thankful for the years of treasured friendship that I can draw to mind while I await sweet reunion after 'while.

Rest well, William Lee. Can't wait to see you and Lolita... ...safe at Home.
